

Wheeler, British M. P. In Row As Solon Charged With Saying England Fighting Jewish War

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—A. Beverley Baxter, Conservative member of Parliament, this week quoted Senator Burton K. Wheeler, isolationists' leader, as saying that England was fighting "a Jewish war" and that America was determined not to be involved in a war of revenge in behalf of the Jews.

In Washington, Senator Wheeler retorted that there was "not a single solitary word of truth" in Mr. Baxter's statement. He dismissed the M. P. for Wood Green, Middlesex, as a "monkey," adding that Mr. Baxter had barged, uninvited into the Wheeler house at a late hour last Sunday evening and had engaged the Senator's family in a heated dispute.

"Frankly," said Senator Wheeler, "I thought he acted like a fool."

Mr. Baxter's version of the meeting was given reporters as he boarded the Dixie Clipper at LaGuardia Field bound for Lisbon. The Toronto-born novelist and journalist was returning to England after a month's tour of Canada, where he lectured on the British war effort.

He said he had interviewed Senator Wheeler as chief political writer for Lord Kemsley's Allied Newspapers, a chain which includes "The Sunday Times," "Sunday Chronicle" and "Daily Sketch."

Makes Charge Deliberately

"Mr. Wheeler has some strange idea," said Mr. Baxter, carefully choosing his words and speaking slowly for the reporters, that "England is fighting a Jewish war. He told me that right across America there was a determination not to be brought into a war of revenge in behalf of the Jews."

"When I asked the Senator to identify the Jews who brought England into the war, he was unable to say. He added he had many friends among the Jews, and did not approve of the German treatment of Jews. I frankly found it difficult to follow his logic in this respect."

Mr. Baxter said he was positive that Senator Wheeler had "certainly made the Jewish point in those terms."

Senator Wheeler also told him, Mr. Baxter said, that he felt the British "should make terms with Germany." Mr. Baxter said he replied that this would never happen "as long as there is a man alive on the island." He said he was informed by Senator Wheeler that the war would "go on forever" if America did not enter it.

Mr. Baxter began his interview by saying that he was impressed by the "warmth and generosity" of the American people toward the British cause.

"Even Senator Wheeler told me he was a friend of Great Britain," he continued, "a statement I received with modified surprise and rapture. Lindbergh once also loved England, and came to live in our country when he couldn't stand living here, and we gave him sanctuary. We kept reporters away from him, and perhaps, he resents us for this."

Wheeler Says A. E. F. Asked For.

Senator Wheeler, told of Mr. Baxter's remarks upon his return from an afternoon of golf, described the meeting as follows:

"He called me up at 9:45 p. m. Sunday and said he wanted to see me. I replied: 'It's pretty late but come on out if you want to.'"

"Well, he came out and he started to argue. He said: 'We need an American Expeditionary Force of 3,000,000 soldiers.' I said: 'Yes, but you aren't going to get them.'"

"He asked me if I thought that England was run by Jews. I told him I had never heard such a statement but that unfortunately a trend of anti-Semitic feeling was growing in the United States. It's unfortunate, but it's true. He asked why. I said: 'Well, a lot of people believe the Jews are trying to get us into the war.'"

Poem Printed in Nazi Paper Fools Hitlerites

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK.—In the newspaper Paris Soir, which of course has been backing the Nazis, there has appeared a poem which by the simple process of splitting each line could be transformed from pro-Nazi into anti-Nazi propaganda. A translation of the ingenious poem which caused the Paris Soir editor's face to turn red, reads:

Let us love and admire / Chancellor Hitler
Eternal England / is not worthy to live . . .
Let us curse and crush / the people across the sea
The Nazi throughout the world / will be the sole survivor . . . .
Let us then support / the German Fuehrer
The British sailor boys / will not last forever . . . .
To them alone belongs / a fitting punishment
The palm of victory / awaits the swastika . . . .

1942 Drive Chairman To be Named, Nov. 10, At Annual Meeting

For the first time in its history, the Jewish Welfare Fund has a chairman with no campaign to chairman—at least not until next spring.

This phenomenal reversal of the natural laws of campaigns will be disclosed at the joint annual meeting of the Jewish Federation and the Jewish Welfare Fund at 8 p. m. Monday, Nov. 10, at the Kirshbaum Center when the gentleman who will lead next year's campaign will be introduced to the community, and vice versa, by William L. Schloss, chairman of the last drive.

Following a "sneak preview" of the new chairman, the community will be treated to a double first run bill. The first, a film titled "A Day at Big Eagle Camp," is a human interest chronicle of activities at the camp from morning flag raising to evening taps. The second film, in technicolor with sound, "A Tale of Two Worlds," is a gripping story of Jewish life in fifty-one countries of the world and includes scenes in Germany, Austria, Poland, Czechoslovakia, France, the Far East, South America and other countries. It is an authentic picture of the life that faces over five million Jews. Many of the backgrounds may be familiar to those who emigrated from the countries shown.

The brief business meeting will include reports of nominating committees and the election of directors of the two organizations. H. Joseph Hyman, executive director of both the federation and the welfare fund, will give a short review of the year's activities. Samuel Mueller, president of the Jewish Welfare Fund, will preside.

A social hour will follow the meeting. All members of the federation and welfare fund and constituent agencies and friends are invited.

Parents Owe It to Children to Enroll Them in J.E.A.
To the Editor:

Jewish parents, you owe your children a moral obligation—an obligation to give them a complete and intensive Jewish education.

Jewish education has always been the most important task. It was the means of the Jewish survival. Throughout Jewish history, whether in periods of prosperity or in critical periods, Jewish education was in the forefront. If the Jew is to survive, we must fortify our children in Judaism, so that they may know what the survival is for.

In these troubled days, when the physical existence of the Jew is threatened, and the Jewish cultural centers of Europe are being destroyed, we in America must

AL SEGAL Speaks on Reform Reforms

THE OTHER week I attended a testimonial dinner that reminded one of the way Reform Judaism has come down from the social status of an exclusive country club to a less rarified atmosphere in which Mr. Nebb, the buttonhole maker, can feel comfortable.

In our town the old "reformers" (that's what they were most respectfully called) used to wear silk hats to temple. Their sons, acting as temple ushers wore tails and white ties on Yom Kippur. To Mr. Nebb, in that time, going to temple was like being allowed to stand on the outskirts of Shangri-la, looking in but having no part in the spiritual riches of the land. (Mr. Nebb sat fidgeting uncomfortably on the edge of a rear pew and when the elegant usher wasn't looking, Mr. Nebb furtively escaped to some nearby Orthodox synagogue which was more like home.

Big reforms have come over Reform Judaism, I thought as I sat at the festal board of the testimonial to Rabbi George Zepin. He was retiring from the Union of American Hebrew Congregations—central body of Reform Judaism—with which he had been connected since 1903, most of the time as its executive director.

Thirty-eight years! The old reformers—may they enjoy the fullness of eternity—would scarcely know the old place which has so changed in that time. In 1903 young Rabbi Zepin started out as a sort of missionary or Reform Judaism to carry it to the hinterland of small, unorganized Jewish communities. He was the first director of circuit work for the Reform group as represented in the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

This was about the beginning of the time during which Reform Judaism ceased to be caviar for the elect. The time was to come when Mr. Nebb, the outsider, could have it and like it, too. Reform Judaism had become a democratic movement instead of a vested interest. (Old families had perpetual pews for which their fathers had paid as much as $3,000, $4,000 or $5,000.)

This is not to disparage the old reformers whose loyalty to their temples was a devotion as complete as their faithfulness to their families and to their personal and business integrity and to their honorable standing in the general community. Being loyal to their religious affiliation was all in one with the good-life—with bringing up worthy children, with having a respected name in the world.

Were they alive it might trouble them to observe that their descendants are not numerous in the leadership of the old congregations they founded. The temples become more and more the possession of the children of the Orthodox immigrants who came over in the eighties and later, and made good lives in America.

The wealth of old temples is not what it used to be and if it were still the custom to buy perpetual pews, it is doubtful whether many affluent buyers could be found. But the newcomers have brought to Reform Judaism something it needed much more than money; its veins had become rather anaemic and the newcomers brought a transfusion from their Orthodox origin—a new, warm stream of Jewish life.

Not that they had much, if any Jewish learning, but their hearts carried the bright hands of mothers' blessing candles on Sabbath, the effulgence of Chanuka lights, the memory of fathers ceremoniously giving God-speed to the Sabbath on Saturday evenings, the luminous nights of many Seders.

All this brought enrichment to Reform Judaism whose blood had begun to run cold and whose ancestral pews were becoming like antiques that people keep out of respect for their fathers' memory! (The old man might turn over in his grave if his favorite old sofa were moved to the attic.)

Yes, things have changed in Reform's house. Reform has been restoring some of the discarded yet lovely old furniture to the temples. A modified talith, called a stole, now embraces the necks of many of the rabbis. In many of the temples, there is a brave marching around, up and down the aisles, with the Scrolls of the Law on Simchath Torah which used to be a holiday whose significance was quite neglected.

There has been an emphasis on the Jewish home as a power house of Jewish religion, a marshalling of youth to keep on being Jewish after he is confirmed. In the newly revised Reform prayer book, there is a prayerful mention for the success of Palestine. This was not in the old prayer books which, in accordance with the original Reform doctrine accepted the diaspora and hoped for the fulfillment of Jewish ideals in the whole, wide world. (All these changes have been made in deference to the traditions of the newcomers.)

Reform Judaism has begun life all over again in the 38 years since Rabbi Zepin has started out as a missionary of Reform to the Jews. It hadn't taken on the rigidity that religious groups suffer as they grew older, so that in time even Reform stiffens into an orthodoxy, until rigor mortis sets in.

Reform Judaism had gone along with changing life and thought, without giving up any of its fundamentals; it had understood that religion is made for man, not man for religion. It had been vital. A hopeful piece of religious work had been done in the 38 years; from a sort of better-families affair Reform Judaism had become home-like for Mr. Nebb.

Rabbi Zepin, a meek man in the Moses pattern, was modest about it all at the testimonial dinner.

Rabbi Zepin was succeeded by Rabbi Edward L. Israel who died so tragically on the day after this testimonial to Rabbi Zepin.

Rabbi Israel was himself a manifestation of the new deal in Reform Judaism: An ardent Zionist though he had come out of the Hebrew Union College (Reform) which had brought up a whole generation of rabbis to be anti-Zionist or non-Zionist. Today a majority of Reform rabbis are Zionists.

He was an economic liberal chosen to lead an organization whose directing laymen during years before had been economic conservatives even while they were religious liberals. The old reformers would have frowned at the idea of being led by a social mind that was so far ahead of them as Rabbi Israel was.

(Rabbi Israel was chairman of the Social Commission of the Central Conference of American Rabbis and in this he was a prophetic spirit. In this he magnificently expressed the Reform concept of Judaism's place in the wide world.)

He was himself of Orthodox origin. His late father, Charles Israel, was learned in the Talmud and a saintly man besides.

PEOPLE And PLACES

BY

FAME

People and Places certainly went places a few weeks ago, immediately after our little announcement of three stickers received by the wedding party after the Linder-Goldstein marriage. Lou Silvers, friend and confidante of the police force, happened to show the clipping to his friend, "Fergie," the cop who gave the stickers. Fergie, in turn, took the clipping and showed it to a couple of other cop pals . . . the result: the clipping was posted on the bulletin board of the city jail for all other policemen to oggle.

HERE AND THERE

If Phi Delta Gamma fraternity wishes to call a meeting at this time, the members will have to be gathered from Uncle Sam's camps all over the country for every member of the fraternity has been called. . . . Winter sports are all well participated in this year. Some of the ice skating enthusiasts spied at the Coliseum last week were Ruth Rosenthal, Lou Silvers, Cliff Levin and his wife, Lilly Mae Smith, Lillian Kamlot, Morris Riskin and Harry Roth, while badminton drew Annette Simon, Miss Becker, Joan Weiss, Florence Lustgarten, Sylvia Hochman to Kirshbaum Center. . . . And speaking of sports, the football game at Purdue Saturday against Iowa was a real upset. Showing great boredom through the first three quarters and revived interest when Purdue finally started pounding through to a victory were Kay Kammerling of Chicago and Jeanne Sacks of Indianapolis, Henry Schildmeier and Estelle Levin, Warren Dubroff and Dave Nassau of Chicago.

AT THE HOUSE

Alums filled the S. A. M. House later both bodily and spiritually. Irv Dagan known to many Indianapolis friends, was taking the weekend off from flying planes and generally learning the "business" at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill. Joe Saffron and his wife were up from Valparaiso, "Dutch" Karansky, former All-Conference Football Star of '28 was present but refused to emit a word about the preceding game for fear it would reveal his true feelings; Technon Floyd Beitman of Indianapolis and Dr. Jacobson of Chicago returned again. Betty Beitman from one college (I. U.) to another, this time with handsome Ralph Brick. George Brick, president of the House, conveniently found his voice lacking over the weekend and left the speech-making up to his fraternity brothers. Bob Romer and Sonya Goulden were seen at the dance later, also Lewis Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Levy, Jack Sapiri, Mr. and Mrs. Schildmeier and Leonard Dorman, all of Indianapolis; Bud Bolotin, Howie Caesar, Ed Katzenberg, Ira Greenberg, Norm Goldstein, Ed Lang, Donald Loren and sister Lois, of Purdue; Dave Blitz and wife of Springfield, Ohio; Gil Devore and wife, all the way from Tennessee; Norman and June Arkin, of Chicago; Sid Glatt, the Schlensky brothers and wives, "Murphy" Weinstein, Fred Fishman, Max Jaffee, L. Arnoff and wives, all of East Chicago. Present in spirit if not in body was alum Russ Glasser who is now "somewhere in the South" learning to fly army bombers.

NIGHT SPOTS

"My Sister Eileen" proved a great success last Saturday evening, especially for Stanley Zalmon and Sarah Elizabeth Marks, Lou Goldman, Isadore and Kate Neuman, Dave Silvers and Anita Cohen. Later at the Southern Mansion, in the new Terrace Room, Clare Goldberg was dancing with a handsome stranger, and others were Goldie Palkus, Herman Logan, Reve Berskin, Eileen Satz and Joe Rabin, Olga Berger, Milt Goldberg, Eleanor Cohen, Zeldia Klezmer, Dave Adler, Lil Chernin and Mike Rubenstein. Murmurs of admiration were heard over the new decorations of the Southern Mansion, but we also heard murmurs of "Here's to bigger and better bands." Speaking of better bands, Fletcher Henderson drew a real mob Sunday evening at the roof. Just part of the "mob" were Abe Dubro, Leon Fish and Milt Stein, of Dayton; Mimi Bluestein, Miriam Bernstein, Harriet Tamler (incidentally, Harriet is the new Junior Council president due to Thelma Levi's resignation on account of her engagement), Virginia Nichols, Gene Zuckerman, Jane Halpern, Frank Greenwald, Johanna Lovinger, Harry and Mickey Harris, Morris Bryan, Marty Gross, Jumbo Nahmias, and others.

Conference Chairman

Second Annual Youth Conference Arranged

The second annual all-day conference of the Indianapolis Jewish Youth Central Council will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, Nov. 9, at Kirshbaum Center.

The conference will open with a round table discussion on "The Effect of National Defense on Jewish Youth," to be followed by a buffet supper and dancing. Florence Slutzky, general chairman, announced this week. Participants in the round table will include Milton J. Fineberg, leader; Herbert Backer, Joseph D. Calderon, Mrs. David Cook, Lee Engel, Gordon Jacobs, Bernice Kaplan, Julius Salman and Ann Shapiro.

In discussing the effect of national defense on Jewish youth, the panelists will consider economic problems, such as job discrimination and new opportunities for jobs and training, the effect of the national emergency on morale, how we can combat anti-Semitism, and how we can help national defense. A period will be set aside for discussion from the floor.

Arrangements for the buffet supper, which will be served at 6 p. m., are being made by Phyllis Cooler, chairman, assisted by Carolyn Jaeger, Leona Berman and Helen Smith. An after dinner program of music and fun will feature such artists as Sophia Gerson, Bernice Cohen and Sidney Tuchman. Arrangements for dancing, which will conclude the day's activities, are being made by Walton Sicanoff.

A nominal fee of 60 cents will cover the entire day's program, including the supper. Reservations may be made by calling Miss Cooler, Humboldt 1278, or Dorothy Forman at Kirshbaum Center, Wabash 2401, not later than Thursday evening, Nov. 6.

Thousands of Jewish Corpses Float Down River, J.T.A. Says

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

ON A HUNGARIAN FRONTIER.—Thousands of Jewish corpses are floating in the waters of the Dniester river, in the Nazi-occupied Ukraine, as a result of massacres of Jews carried out by German soldiers in co-operation with Ukrainian bands, it was reported by Hungarian officers arriving here this week from the German-Soviet front where they participated in the Axis invasion of the Soviet Ukraine.

The officers, shocked by the horrible scenes which they were compelled to witness, estimated that tens of thousands of Jews were massacred in the Kamenetz-Podolsk region alone from where the officers have just returned. Among the dead are at least 15,000 Hungarian Jews. Last August the Hungarian government deported some 18,000 Jews from Hungary to Galicia, the majority of whom were later driven by the Nazis into villages located on both sides of the Dniester River.

One of the officers also estimated that among those killed in Kamenetz-Podolsk region were 8,000 Galician Jews. Many of the Jews were machine-gunned while praying in their synagogues while others were massacred by German and Ukrainian units in their homes and their bodies thrown into the river.

Further massacres of Jews who managed to save themselves from these pogroms were predicted by the Hungarian officers. The Jews in the Nazi-occupied Ukraine are all facing starvation and suffer from lack of food and medicaments. Jewish communities in Galicia which have been informed of the terrible sufferings of the Jews in the Kamenetz-Podolsk region are unable to aid them in any way since the Jews in Galicia are themselves living under inhuman conditions.

The Editor's Chair,

A week in the life of an editor: Two calls from members of The Indianapolis Jewish Federation hinting in an off-hand way if I knew whether anyone was planning any fireworks at the annual meeting. As far as I know nominations will be presented from two sources for the Board of The Federation, but I haven't any more information than just that, and also I am not a party to either of these purported moves, although I heartily approve of them. . . . Many letters on the B'nai B'rith's State Association's new move, and all in approval. None which I can print, though. For the most part, they express wonderment at the overwhelming majority by which the nomination resolution was passed. One letter reads almost like poetry: "The overwhelming vote in favor of the resolution is irrevocable proof that a very strong majority feels as strongly about the matter as we do. What I had feared would be a voice crying alone in the wilderness turned out to be a choral triumph, drowning out the stubborn and persistent die-hards with a thrilling crescendo!" . . . . Was much pleased to read that Evansville's Washington Avenue Temple discussed at its regular Friday night forum an article from the New Year issue of The Post. If The Post can arouse discussion among its readers then it is doing exactly 100 per cent what it set out to do. . . . A call from Tevie Jacobs about a few paragraphs in The Army and Navy Bulletin describing Yom Kippur services in a Methodist Church at Rockingham N. C., attended by 1,500 Jewish boys, who were unable to crowd into the small local synagogue. This gesture was in return for the use by the Wilmington, N. C., Methodist Church of the synagogue there when that church was burned to the ground. . . . A visit from Eddie Vadja, who is regional worker for the Joint Distribution Committee, who tells me that Indianapolis will be host to a state meeting of the J. D. C. on Jan. 16.

I've been doing a lot of funny things lately. I mean more than usual. Monday I drove to Terre Haute for the B'nai B'rith meeting only to find out after arriving there that the meeting is this coming Monday. What does schlemiel mean? However, I ran into the meeting of the Zionist District, so what with seeing the refreshing Mrs. John Tatelman and the no good Lou Sutin again, I was partly recompensed. One of the attendants at the La Conga dance last Sunday, who admitted, however,

Editorial

Exercise Your Right to Vote at Annual Meetings

BOTH THE Indianapolis Jewish Federation and the Jewish Welfare Fund will hold their annual meetings Monday, Nov. 10. Although expediency makes it desirable that these meetings be held jointly, the community should understand that these are two separate groups, the first concerned with all the problems of the Jewish community, and the second interested solely in the annual drive for funds among the Jewish citizenry. Both have their own set of officers, and their own set of directors.

The two groups offer to the community the right to nominate persons for their boards in competition with those named by a nominating committee. Last year, for the first time in many elections, a person not nominated by the nominating committee broke through the Federation slate and was named by the voters to a place on the board. This is a healthy example and a valuable reminder to the community that these two organizations belong to the community and are willing to abide by the wishes of the community provided the community becomes articulate and makes known its demands by voting at the annual elections.

The procedure in both organizations could be changed in some respects to provide for an arrangement whereby the community would be asked to select from say ten men for the six or seven places, as the case may be, but no member of the community can claim that his right of suffrage was denied, because any five members of the community (anyone who contributes to the Jewish Welfare Fund is a member of the community) may by petition at least five days before the annual meeting, nominate another member of the community for a place on the board.

The Post has heard that several parties plan to make nominations by petition this year. This is a wholesome move, and the community will thus be given the right to select for these important positions people whom it feels deserve, by background and by the work they have done, these places on the boards of the city's two most important Jewish bodies.

Would You Cripple Your Own Children?

IF ARITHMETIC were eliminated from your child's studies at school, so that he never learned to count, you would be just one of a crowd of mothers who would rush down to the Board of Education in an angry mob. Yet when your child is never given an opportunity to learn his Jewish background, an omission which he will always hold against you, and one which so many of you already hold against your parents, you take it about as unconcernedly or with as much pleasure as if you missed going to services Friday night.

Arithmetic will enable your boy to count his money. Jewish education will make him healthy mentally and enable him to face whatever the future holds for him unashamedly and with courage. Which is the more important?

And here is a still more not understandable hole in your mentality. You Jewish mothers, you who ignore the richness and strength you can give your child, your child, is innocent. He doesn't know what you are depriving him of. But you, you know. Sure you do! You know that you are afraid to whisper the word Jew in public; you know that many of your actions are circumscribed by fear because you are a Jew. Certainly. You know in reality that you are in many respects in a ghetto and have been for all your adult life.

And the miserable aspect of the situation is that knowing this, you not only do nothing about it yourself, but you also prepare for your son or daughter this same blight, so that when he grows up he'll be dominated by fear and worry, too.

Can you imagine a grandson of President Roosevelt who would not be told over and over again of the thrilling exploits of his grandfather. Can you imagine a scion of the Cabots of Massachusetts who would not on his mother's knee learn of the part his forebearers played in the history of this nation.

Then can you imagine a Jewish child who could not tell you that Isaiah, the prophet, said, "And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, their spears into pruning hooks; and, nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore." Or a Jewish child who would be ignorant of the fact that it was the Jewish prophets who first brought the concept of mercy into Western civilization or first said that the strangers were to be treated like members of the tribe. Or didn't know the history of the prayer "Nosanah Tokeff."

James G. MacDonald told Jewish audiences throughout the nation several years ago that he was shocked at the surprising ignorance of Jews in regards to even the most simple and commonly understood matters about their own history.

October is Jewish Education month. Last week was enrollment week. Instead of the Jewish Education Association begging you to send your child to Hebrew school you should be beseeching the Association, which incidentally is one of the finest of any in the nation, to enroll your little one, the darling whose slightest sneeze or discomfort causes you to rush to the physician.

You may ignore this editorial. But God forbid, if the future is what it looks as if it is going to be, you won't be able to answer for crippling your child's personality. Will he be a cringing Jew and thus a cringing American or will he be a forthright wholesome member of the Jewish community and the community at large?

The Junior Chamber of Commerce States the Case

THE GREETINGS—by which Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt was saluted as he was about to be honored by the Indianapolis Junior Chamber of Commerce as a Good American," should not be allowed to go unnoticed by the Jewish community. Many larger groups have stated the case for minorities in resolutions and speeches, and many national figures have called to the attention of the American public the need for protecting the right of minorities in this land, but none has done it more feelingly, and none more honestly. The salutation was part of the Junior Chamber's weekly radio program, which thus far has honored six young leaders.

The salutation reads: "The program is proud to have as guest of honor tonight a representative of a great race of people, a race which has long been noted for its complete Americanism. He has been invited here in order that the Junior Chamber of Commerce might present him with the "Award of Merit" for his outstanding contribution to that thing, which is the very heart of our defense efforts, National Unity. America became the great nation that it is today, by holding fast to the philosophy that this country is big enough and strong enough to give every man an even chance regardless of ancestors or backgrounds. We believe very strongly that racial and religious intolerance have no place in the American way of life. It is our opinion that every citizen, regardless of his race or political affiliates, whether he be Jew, Catholic or Protestant, owes a debt to this country, and the purpose of this series of awards is simply to pay tribute to those who are making extra payments on their debt to America."

Certainly this is a fine and sensible tribute to the Jewish citizens of the United States and, of course, to our local Jewish community.

concentrate every effort to retain our Jewish culture and to build large centers of Jewish education to replace those cultural fortifications which are now being destroyed.

The Jewish Educational Association in Indianapolis is making every effort to give your children a thorough Jewish education. With your cooperation we shall be able to raise a cultured and intelligent Jewish generation—a generation that will understand Jewish life and will have a desire to live up to our Jewish standard.

Give your child the education to which he is entitled. Send him to a Jewish school.

Tells What J. E. A. Means to Him

To the Editor:

The J. E. A. has a very deep meaning for me for several different reasons. As a student for eleven years it has given to me a deep love of Jewish life, but more than that it has given to me an understanding of it. It has educated me to the point where now I am able to take my place as a junior teacher in the school.

But its greatest importance I can better see from an impersonal point of view. I can see why Jewish communities in our country and especially in our community, are in such a condition of poor lay leadership. When the heads of our various organizations are men who are completely unfamiliar with what Jewish life is, it is only institutions, such as the Hebrew schools, that can remedy this situation. Only the Hebrew schools can once more create a group of Bale Batim, which can once again put into Jewish life that impetus which is so sorely needed.

It is to that end that our J. E. A. is working. I hope that they can succeed in doing it. I know they can if they are given the chance. They can't do it if they only have the student for a few years. That is a practical impossibility. But if the Hebrew schools can retain their students for a span of ten years, then we in Indianapolis will have a community which we will be very proud of. If not, then the situation of incapable lay leadership will continue.

ALFRED DOBROWITZ.

Indianapolis.

that he enjoyed the program thoroughly, said that his grandfather would go home and fast for forty days if he had seen the "90 per cent" (his words, not mine) naked girls dancing in the sacred precincts of the synagogue.
